Magicians and secret agents need to be good at concealing things. Here are two fun tricks which require you to secretly hide coins.

MULTIPLYING COINS
 Secretly hide four coins inside the back binding of a book (Fig. 5.) Close the book and the coins will stay there. Tell someone you will make coins multiply. Open the book and place four coins on it (Fig. 1.) Pour the coins into their hands and amazingly there are now eight coins (Fig. 2.) When you tip the book, the hidden coins will slide out joining the four original coins.

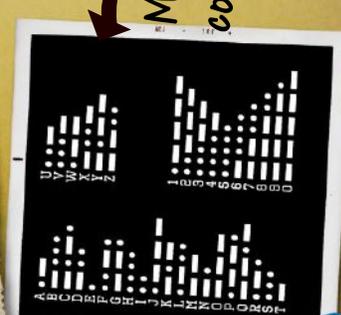

Show everyone a single coin and rub it on your elbow. Grasp the hidden coin with your other hand. Bring your hands together and slowly open both hands to show the audience two coins where there was once just one!

MAGIC ELBOW
 Secretly hide a coin in your collar (Fig. 1.)

SNEAKY TRICKS

DID YOU KNOW?
 Author Graham Greene was a spy during World War II. He usually signed his secret reports with his code name, 'S9200'. He also used the names of characters from his novels.
